CASE STUDY

About M&M Transmission

M&M Transmission builds custom transmissions and torque converters. M&M Transmission prides themselves in their ambition and drive to create the best transmissions and components that the high performance market will ever see. M&M Transmission's constant search for more efficiency and reliability out of their transmissions, components and torque converters has led their team and their R&D car owned by Jason Carter and driven by their very own Mark Micke to two major championships in 2013 and the record in each class.

What we do for M&M Transmission

Performance Plus Global Logistics works with M&M Transmission daily to assist with their day-to-day shipping needs in order to get their transmissions, fiberglass body sections and automotive parts where they need to be in a timely and efficient manner. We understand the importance of getting these commodities to the race track, race shop or wherever else they need to be because with racers being an intricate part of the PPLUS Team, we have a true understanding of the industry. The Performance Plus Team has provided custom solutions for M&M Transmission in order get the job done. Maria works hand-in-hand with Jamie in our office several times throughout the week, and Jamie ensures that Maria and the M&M Transmission Team is always taken care of.

“ [Performance Plus] takes all the guessing out of my schedule. They handle it from start to end so I can do more at our business to help out here.

They do everything! They are very quick and have handled many last minute shipments.”
